

International Association for Chinese Management Research

Distinguished Contribution Award

Call for Nominations

In recognition of IACMR's mission, we confer awards for excellence in Chinese management research every two years. These awards will be conferred at the 2010 IACMR Conference in Shanghai, China (June 16-20, 2010). Now, we are seeking nominations for IACMR Distinguished Contribution Award.

The Distinguished Contribution Award is for a senior scholar who has devoted much of his/her career to the study of Chinese management and has made significant contributions to the field in theory, methodology or in explaining the workings of Chinese organizations or organizations in China. S/he has advanced the field and blazed a path for future researchers; and that have enhanced the visibility of Chinese management research by impacting on the broader research community.

Eligibility

All scholars are eligible for nomination. IACMR membership is not required. To avoid conflict of interest, Research Award Committee members are not eligible for nomination or consideration of the award. Deserving committee members may be nominated in subsequent years.

Please go to the Awards page of the IACMR website: www.iacmr.org for more detailed information on the IACMR award descriptions and winners in 2004, 2006 and 2008.

Nomination Procedure

A nomination must include:

1. A nomination letter specifying the nominee's name, a brief statement on the contributions to the field of Chinese management, and reasons for the nominee to receive the award.
2. The nominee's full curriculum vitae with all basic information on the first page, including name, position, university and publications.
3. The nominator should seek the agreement of the nominee for the nomination. The nominee must attend the meeting to receive the award if selected.

All nominations must be submitted electronically to IACMR Coordinator Red Ng (iacmr@asu.edu) by December 30, 2009.
